DEATH OF EMINENT JUDGE

CHIEF JUSTICE HARRY M. CLAYBAUGH OF WASHINGTON, D. C.

Superintendent Calvin Hamilton of the National Cemetery Passes Away

HARRY M. CLAYBAUGH, chief justice of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, died last Friday night, March 6, in Washington, D. C., after an illness of several months in his 58th year. Judge Claybaugh was held in the highest esteem in Washington, where he had occupied a position on the Bench for over fifteen years. He had many warm admirers in this place having graduated from Gettysburg College, and at Taneytown, where he lived many years.

Judge Claybaugh was born in Cumberland, Md., in 1856, a son of George W. and Ellen Claybaugh. He prepared at Layola College and entered Gettysburg College in 1873 and graduated four years later in 1877. Judge Claybaugh was of the unusual type of students. He was a popular hero among the boys, slenderly built, always faultlessly dressed and the best all round sport in college. He was the best catcher on the college baseball team of those days. To the younger generation of boys he was an ideal and so set aside and enshrined in their affections.

Judge Claybaugh quickly made good in his life work. He attended the Law Department of the University of Maryland, practiced law in Baltimore for several years, became chairman of the Republican State Committee and after piloting through a successful campaign was made Attorney General of Maryland, and while serving in this position was appointed by President McKinley to the Supreme Court bench of the District of Columbia and in 1904 was promoted to the chief justice ship. His rapid advancement delighted his many friends in Gettysburg as the just rewards of merit and no one ever wore his rewards with more grace and less ostentation than Judge Claybaugh.

Judge Claybaugh further occupied a distinctive place here in having won one of the most charming of Gettysburg's girls as his wife, Miss Katherine Swope, daughter of the late Dr. and Mrs. John A. Swope, who survives with two daughters, Mrs. Helen Lamberton and Mrs. Katherine Bloomer, both of Washington.

The funeral was held on Tuesday and interment was in Rock Creek Cemetery, Washington. A number of distinguished men acted as honorary pallbearers, among them Governor Goldsborough of Maryland, and his five associate judges of the District Supreme Court.

CALVIN HAMILTON, Superintendent of the National Cemetery, died on Wednesday afternoon at the lodge from uraemic poisoning, aged 72 years, 3 months and 12 days. He was born near Gettysburg, a son of Wm. and Evaline Bayly Hamilton, and was a member of one of the oldest families in the county, antedating Revolutionary times. He attended the public schools of this town and for awhile Gettysburg College, leaving it in 1862 to enlist in Co. K, 1st Pa. Reserves. He was one of the few natives actually participating in the Battle of Gettysburg, and was wounded in the fight in the Valley of Death. On recovery he was mustered into the Veteran Reserve Corps, serving until the end of the war. He was at home at the dedication of the National Cemetery and heard Lincoln make his address.

After the war he attended the State Normal School, then located at Newville, then went to Illinois where he taught three years at New Oxford, and in 1879 was elected a teacher in the public schools here and serving as principal for years, this service covering a period of about 12 years. He was appointed Superintendent of the Soldiers' National Cemetery here, and last October had served in that position for 22 years. He was always active and interested in everything pertaining to the welfare of the town. He served as assistant Burgess. He was a member of the school board for many years, serving as president of board at time of his death. He was deeply interested in the schools and school department. He belonged to Corporal Skelly Post No. 2, G. A. R., being adjutant at time of his death.

He did not wait for the train to pass but stepped between two cars. The cars came together and caught him between the coupling boxes, inflicting fatal injuries. He was taken at once to the West Penn hospital and expired ten minutes after his arrival at the hospital.

ORRTANNA.

We are surely having a very wet weather, and the roads are very muddy with the heavy snow. Many of the roads, Carls, Cars, have been left around on the roads, and many of the roads are very muddy.

Carrier Spense found it impossible to cover much of his route.

Peter Kump, who is somewhat experienced in trapping, has thus far during the winter succeeded in capturing four large foxes.

John M. Wozel is having the lumber sawed preparatory to the erection of a bank barn as soon as the weather becomes favorable for building.

Several weeks ago Mrs. A. M. Lochmann found on their farm in Franklin township, two deer horns, or the horns of two deer, the one is five and the other three inches. They were not more than fifty yards from the house and lay so close together that she picked them both up in her one hand. They evidently were fighting and thus interlocked their horns so as to break them off.

H. L. Spense purchased of Ira Biessecker a lot of ground at west end of town on which he will build a dwelling house. He is having a well drilled at this time.

Charles Spence, our rural mail carrier on route No. 2, will also erect a large and commodious dwelling in the very near future.

HOW TO GET FAT

Use Samose says Peoples' Drug Store and Put on Good Flesh.

The almost universal interest in physical culture is the best evidence that can be offered as to the need of a simple and scientific method of making thin people fat, increasing strength and restoring health.

Athletes, when carried to an extreme, often result in straining the vital organs. How much better it would be for the average person to regain health, strength and flesh by using Samose. This flesh forming feed is assimilated as soon as it enters the stomach. It helps the organs to assimilate the food and extract the flesh forming elements. It builds up the muscles and rounds out the limbs into shapely proportions.

Samose has been so successful in making thin people fat and restoring the weak and run down to strength, and has built up Peoples' Drug Store, the famous druggist, sells it under their personal guarantee to refund the money if it does not benefit.

Not Paint

With linseed oil at 50c to 51c, what sort of oil do you think they use in "paint" at $1.50 and $1.25?

That stuff is counterfeited paint. You can cheat yourself; you can't cheat Time or weather. Paint is a rubbery coat over wood and iron to keep-out water.

Counterfeited paint may look like it, counterfeited money looks like money. What are all counterfeits for? They are all alike.

An Unusual Offer.

"It isn't often that we have faith enough in the medicine put up by other people to be willing to offer to refund the money if it does not cure," said Peoples' Drug Store to a COMPLEX man who dropped into their store, "But we are glad to sell Dr. Howard's specific for the cure of constipation and dyspepsia on that basis."

"The Dr. Howard Company in order to get a quick introductory sale, authorizes us to sell their regular fifty cent bottles at half-price, 25 cents, and, although we have sold a lot of it, and have guaranteed every package, not one has been brought back as unsatisfactory."

"We are still selling the specific at half-price, although we cannot tell how long we shall be able to do so, and anyone who is subject to constipation, sick headache, dizziness, liver trouble, indigestion or a general played out condition, ought to take advantage of this chance. You can tell your relatives that if they are not satisfied with the specific that they can come right back to our store and we will cheerfully refund their money."

Adams as chairman of the Western Maryland and will make his headquarters as chairman and president in Baltimore, thereby re-establishing that city as the principal base of the company's operations.

WHILE we are Writing this snow is on the ground--
"it is cold enough for you"--but for our stock of Winter Coats and Furs it came too late. Last Summer and late Fall we gambled on the weather for Winter--as most merchants must--we expected snow, slush and sleet during the months we naturally expect it, "but you know the rest." You didn't buy, you didn't have to, we, of course, didn't sell. Now we still have a good many of the garments you should have been wearing months ago, and we want money instead of Winter merchandise, so we are going to give you all the profits on the balance of our stock, that we ought to have made on these goods, and a part of the cost. COME AND GET YOURS BEFORE CHOICE IS BROKEN.

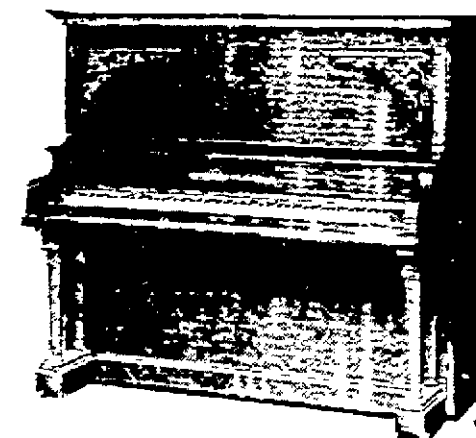

Many of the New Spring Goods are in, and more coming in almost every day, goods that take rack room as well as goods that take counter and shelf room. If you do not need, or if you think you can get along without Winter goods--look up your Spring wants from our vast stock--while stocks are perfectly fresh.

PRES. WILSON'S 1ST YEAR

HE HAS ACCOMPLISHED GREAT ACHIEVEMENTS

He Has Redeemed Platform Promises, and is Giving a Democratic, Economical Administration.

At the end of a year of unexampled activity, energy and mental exertion, Woodrow Wilson remains the same man who took the Presidential oath on March 4, 1913. The hardships and rigors of public life have not affected him. Neither has he been swayed or changed by the power of his high office. He is the same sensible, modest, unassuming man who, as a plain citizen, guided the destinies of a great educational institution and served as Governor of a sovereign Commonwealth.

In the year he has been absent from the White House but three weeks and as compared with his predecessors he has done no travelling. He has received something like 160,000 letters, a daily average of over 500.

President Wilson has delivered six short messages in person before Congress and has given a dignity and importance to his message no written message has ever had.

President Wilson has been responsible for other innovations along Democratic lines. The expensive inaugural ball was dispensed with at the start, the escort of President by police on motorcycles has been discontinued, also the uniformed and he must bed back of the White House.

Great Achievements

Among the great achievements which President Wilson has guided to consummation are:

A Banking and Currency law which has removed the hand of Wall street and established a democracy of credit.

A tariff act comprising reduction in duties on imported necessities and calculated to lower the cost of living. No favoritism has been shown protected interests, but the people were substituted as beneficiaries. In framing this legislation the supervision of Wall street and special interests was rejected.

Two important amendments to the Constitution—the first adopted in forty-three years—were made effective. One provides for the direct election of Senators by the people. The other authorizes the imposition of a tax on incomes, thus transferring the burden of maintaining the government from the poor to the wealthy.

Proposals were made to all civilized nations for the arrangement of treaties whereby actual hostilities would be deferred during a year of reflection. Thirty governments signified their acceptance of this principle.

The whole trend of the Wilson administration has been a return to popular, Democratic government, the redemption of platform promises and economy in the administration of government. This trend is shown in following way:

The Constitution of Peace presented by the President has gone far in the direction of breaking up interlocking directorates, which formed the backbone of trusts and monopolies.

The helping hand of the government was extended to the farmers when $50,000,000 were distributed to assist in moving crops.

The employment of peaceable methods by which the Telephone Trust was dissolved without litigation or expense.

The placing of the postal system on a self-sustaining basis for the first time in governmental history.

The parcel post system has been developed and extended to a remarkable degree of efficiency and benefit.

The Armory Trust was compelled to submit competitive bids in connection with the construction of American battleships. The government was saved more than $2,000,000.

A new public land policy was inaugurated. It combines conservation and the proper use of the national domain.

The extinction of many great combinations in restraint of trade by agreement.

Passage of an act providing for the selection of Presidential candidates by primaries.

Establishment of a budget system to lessen governmental expenditures.

These are but a few of the many things the Wilson administration has accomplished and Woodrow Wilson has taken high rank with his countrymen among the very best presidents the country has had.

President's Message on Canal Toll

The following is the President's sixth speech to Congress, delivered in person: Gentlemen of the Congress:—I am come to you upon an errand which can be very briefly performed, but I beg that you will not measure its importance by the number of sentences in which I state it.

No communication I have addressed to the Congress carried with it graver or more far-reaching implications to the interest of the country, and I come now to speak upon a matter with regard to which I am charged in a peculiar degree, by the Constitution itself, with personal responsibility.

I have come to ask for the repeal of that provision of the Panama Canal Act of August 24, 1912, which exempts vessels engaged in the coastwise trade of the United States from payment of tolls, and to urge upon you justice, the wisdom and the large policy of such a repeal with the utmost earnestness of which I am capable.

In my own judgment, very fully considered and maturely formed, that exemption constitutes a mistaken demanding the utmost precaution in maintaining health at high efficiency.

It is doubly important and nothing in the world is so needful as Scott's Emulsion, good cheer and sunshine.

Scott's Emulsion makes the blood rich and pure. It contains the vital flesh-building and bone-building properties and insures abundant nourishment. It strengthens the nerves and creates energy and vitality during this period.

Expectant and nursing mothers always need Scott's Emulsion.

SCOTT & BOWNE, BOSTON, U.S.A.

economic policy from every point of view, and is, moreover, in plain contravention of the treaty with Great Britain concerning the canal concluded on November 15, 1901.

"But I have not come to you to urge my personal views. I have come to state to you a fact and a situation. Whatever may be our own differences of opinion concerning this much-debated measure, its meaning is not debated outside the United States. Everywhere else the language of the treaty is given but one interpretation, and that interpretation precludes the exemption I am asking you to repeal."

"We consented to the treaty; its language we accepted, if we did not originate it; and we are too big, too powerful, too self-respecting a nation to interpret with too strained or refined a reading the words of our own promises just because we have power enough to give us leave to read them as we please."

"The large thing to do is the only thing we can afford to do, a voluntary withdrawal from a position everywhere questioned and misunderstood. We ought to reverse our action without raising the question whether we were right or wrong, and so once more deserve our reputation for generosity and the redemption of every obligation without quibble or hesitation."

"I ask this of you in support of the foreign policy of the Administration. I shall not know how to deal with other matters of even greater delicacy and nearer consequence if you do not grant it to me in ungrudging measure."

THE MARCH MAGAZINES

Purification of the Felon Immigrant.

It is estimated that between 1750 and 1770 twenty thousand British convicts were exported to Maryland alone, so that even the schoolmasters there were mostly of this stripe. The colonies bitterly resented such cargoes, but their self-protective measures were regularly disallowed by the home government. American scholars are coming to accept the British estimate that about 50,000 convicts were marked on this side.

It is astonishing how quickly this "yellow streak" in the population faded. No doubt the worst felons were promptly hanged, so that those transported were such as excited the compassion of the court in an age that recognized nearly three hundred capital offenses. Then, too, the bulk were probably unfortunate, or the victims of bad surroundings, rather than born malefactors. Under the regenerative stimulus of opportunity many persons reformed and became good citizens. From "Origins of the American People," by Prof. Edward A. Ross in the March "Century."

Schooling Interfered With Education

In the March "Woman's Home Companion," Mary Heaton Vorse writes an article entitled "The Importance of Play." It is the fourth in the series of articles on how the Montessori method of education may be applied in American homes. She says:

"The very foundation of Doctor Montessori's principle is that no human being ever learned anything that he does not teach himself, and the knowledge—if one can call it by such a name—which is artificially forced upon a child, in other words the things which it is made to learn, is of little use to it. How true this is anyone can discover by thinking back into his school days and reflecting what he didn't learn and then what he did. Mark Twain said: 'Don't let your son's schooling interfere too much with his education.'"

Bad Boys Grown Up.

In his first report to the people of Colorado, Mr. Tamm, Warden of the Colorado State Penitentiary, struck the keynote of his philosophy—a philosophy founded on the golden rule. In speaking of his plans and hopes to return to the State valuable assets in the form of good citizens in exchange for the unprofitable delinquents sent him, Mr. Tamm says:

"Bad men, when one gets close to them, are only bad boys grown up. The old idea that punishment should be purely retributive has gone the way of other ancient credos and superstitions."

Penal servitude is no longer considered society's revenge upon the individual. Its secret's efforts to reform and to educate. The modern penitentiary that sends out offenders and un-sundered men is only a means to the secret it is supposed to protect. I find the criminal nature of which we hear so much is, after all, only human nature misdirected. And human nature has always been more amenable to goodness and kindness than to punishment and unkindness.—"Reformation of the Prisoners," by Wm. Edward Ross, in the March "Century."

Accident Changes His Moral Nature

The March "Century" Magazine, in an article by Wm. Edward Ross, "The Moral Nature of the Prisoner," tells the story of a man who, after an accident, changed his moral nature. The story is told in a way that is both interesting and instructive. It is a story of a man who, after an accident, changed his moral nature. The story is told in a way that is both interesting and instructive. It is a story of a man who, after an accident, changed his moral nature.

tells the stories of a number of cases of amnesia, or loss of memory power. Following is one of his stories:

"A Philadelphian named Ennis pleaded guilty to the charges of bigamy and embezzlement, alleging in his defense that he committed both crimes while afflicted with loss of memory due to cerebral injury. In this he was upheld by his physician, Dr. H. W. Bohringer, who declared, according to the newspaper report of the case:

"What Ennis says is absolutely true. He met with an accident while a sailor in the United States navy, and since then a bone has been pressing on his brain. It twisted his moral nature, and changed him from a good husband and father and a man highly respected to a bigamist and a thief."

Children Wanted Fresh Air.

An interesting experiment of the "Open-Air Crusade," tried upon normal children in one of the public schools, was conducted by the principal of the Graham School of Chicago. After noting the great success of the Elizabeth McCormick School for diseased children he determined to find out what plenty of fresh air would do for the children in his building. Accordingly, two rooms were used for the open-air classes. At the outset there was difficulty in gaining the co-operation of parents, as it was zero weather. After a term's trial, so satisfactory was the result upon the pupils, both physically and mentally, that the parents themselves began to ask for more fresh-air classes. The school year closed with seven open rooms. With the beginning of a new year, so popular had fresh-air school rooms become that twenty cold rooms were opened for public instruction.—"Suburban Life—the Countryside Magazine" for March.

What Farm Women Want Most.

"We have said that the first thing millions of them want is running water in the house. Now that Secretary Houston has officially agreed with us we feel more sure of it. 'Analysis of the small part of the letters yet digested,' says the secretary, 'shows that farm women desire assistance in all phases of home management, especially as to ways of securing running water introducing household power machinery and labor-saving arrangements, and providing better hygienic and sanitary conditions.' And the first of these is running water. Important as the others are..."—"Farm and Fireside" for March.

The Friendly Game of Quilts.

The modern game of quilts, played with the sharp-edged, concave iron rings, is peculiarly adapted to wider use in country and town. It is a friendly game, free from too intense rivalries and the ill feeling of doubtful decisions, yet affording attractive test of muscle and nerve.

Almost anyone possessing one hand and from nine to ninety years of age may play well at quilts. Girls enjoy it, especially with the lighter weights. It is one of the too few outdoor games in which middle-aged and old men join on equal footing with the youths and keep alive the play-spirit that holds back decrepitude.—"March "Outing."

Night on the Desert.

An hour later I awoke, and unwinding myself got out. It was night on the desert. All was asleep on the box upright, with his chin against his breast. Hamlet lay in his burrhouse in the sand some little distance away. The horses stood in some low brush near the ditch. The Palm grove, impenetrably black, stood behind, edging the long, low line of the sky; there was a chorus of frogs monotonously chanting; and before me to the west was the vague sands, with undistinguishable lines and obscure hillocks, overlaid with darkness. Only the sky gave distance to the silent solitude—such a sky as one does not see elsewhere, where, magnificent with multitudes of stars, bright and lucid, or fine and innumerable, melting into nebulous clouds and milky trails, sparkling and brilliant in their keen, clear, cloudless cold, all the billion round. I was alone, and I was dead. It was a wonderful moment and scene. Hamlet stirred in his place, and I went back to my box and slept soundly and well.—"From "Tales of the North African and the Desert" by George E. Woodberry, in the March "Century."
